3. Election and Representation

4. Legislature
5. Executive

Q 1. Read the passage given below carefully and answer the questions that follow:

A constitution is not only about the composition of the various organs of government and the relations among them. The constitution is a document that sets limits on the powers of the government and ensures a democratic system in which all persons enjoy certain rights. The Indian Constitution provides Fundamental Rights. Part three of the Constitution of India lists the Fundamental Rights and also mentions the limits on these rights. In the past fifty years, the scope of rights has changed and in some respects, expanded.

- a) What are the various Fundamental Rights listed in the Constitution of India?
- b) How these rights are protected?
- c) What is the difference between the Fundamental Rights and the Directive Principles of State Policy?

Q 2. Read the passage given below carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Though freedom is guaranteed in our Constitution, we encounter new interpretations all the time. This is a bit like playing a game; as we play chess or cricket, we learn how to interpret the rules. In the process, we discover new and broader meanings of the game itself. Similarly, the fundamental rights guaranteed by our Constitution are continually being reinterpreted in response to new circumstances. For instance, the right to life has been interpreted by the Courts to include the right to livelihood. The right to information has been granted through a new law. Societies frequently encounter new challenges which generate new interpretations. The fundamental rights guaranteed by our Constitution have been amended and expanded over time through judicial interpretations and government policies which are designed to address new problems.

1. How the right to freedom has been designed to address new problems?

- a) Through debates and discussions.
- b) Through judicial interpretations and government policies.
- c) Through amendments in the constitution.
- d) Both a and b

2. _____ has been interpreted to include right to livelihood

- a) Right to Life
- b) Right to Survival
- c) Right to Live
- d) All of the above

3. Which right has been granted by a new law?
